Machine status indicator update fix, Refs #813

Fixed display of the proper indicator image when a machine transits from an active state to ERROR state.

Fixes apply for both icon and single view.

After a quick review on transitions text representations, it seems that hardcoded conditions with the default (english) texts exist in several places within the code.

E.g.

ui/templates/machines_icon.html

// current_message now includes the content of the status div (translated in current request language)
546: var current_message = existing.find(".status").text();

// current_message property won't exist if transition is translated in another language
609: else if ((TRANSITIONS[current_message] == 'Rebooting' && server.status == 'ACTIVE') || ...

// TRANSITIONS defined in ui/templates/home.html
91   var TRANSITIONS = {
92     'Shutting down' : '{% trans "Shutting down" %}',
93     'Rebooting'    : '{% trans "Rebooting" %}',
94     'Starting'     : '{% trans "Starting" %}',
95     'Destroying'   : '{% trans "Destroying" %}',
96     'Connecting'   : '{% trans "Connecting" %}', // used only in networks

97     'Disconnecting' : '{% trans "Disconnecting" %}' // used only in networks
98     };

it seems like a non-trivial, at least without further review of the code.

Moving to v0.5.2...

A few more problems:

- IE8/9 does not update the Single-server view properly, seems to be stuck in "Building"
- IE shows "Destroy" out of alignment when it is the only available option.

- Status changed from New to Assigned
